Another University Not Needed

(An Editorial)

The big push is on by Arkansas State College at Jonesboro to acquire state-supported university status. Legislators are being badgered and pressured and many otherwise sensible people are being swayed by the flood of propaganda which always accompanies such a pressure movement.

A close examination of the facts, however, would convince any reasonable person that it would be a mistake, and a serious mistake at that, for Arkansas to attempt to elevate Arkansas State to university status at this time.

The State of Arkansas, it is true, does need the best in higher education facilities, but this is not the time, and Arkansas State is not the place, to take the step.

The truth of the matter is that Arkansas has only very limited resources for the support of its state-supported colleges, and the competition that already exists among these autonomous colleges is anything but healthy.

If Arkansas State is allowed to duplicate the facilities that already exist at Fayetteville and elsewhere, and embark upon a program of continued expansion of its curricula, the money is going to have to come out of the total allotment now made for the support of all seven institutions.

Arkansas can afford one first-rate university, plus a system of good colleges meeting the needs of the undergraduates in the various sections of the state. This can be achieved only if the courses and services offered by the various institutions are tailored to fit a pattern that will eliminate duplication and inefficiency and derive maximum benefits from the limited money available for higher education.

Much needs to be done to improve the existing state university at Fayetteville. For instance, average faculty salaries are relatively low in competition with other universities for university-type faculty and for attracting able persons into the teaching profession.

If university status is granted to Arkansas State at Jonesboro at this time, we will face the prospect of:

1. Spreading the potential students for advanced and specialized university work throughout two institutions, thereby making it less practical to build a high quality program at reasonable cost in either institution.

2. Lowering the standard of university work at a time when Arkansas and the nation need quality more than quantity in education.

3. Raising the cost of higher education to the taxpayer without obtaining comparable results to education.

4. Making it more difficult to develop additional advanced graduate programs related to and even integral with existing programs at the University of Arkansas because of too few students at either place to justify expansion.

Over and above the reasons given above, it will be hard to convince the people of south Arkansas that, if the State of Arkansas needs another university, the institution should be located up near the Missouri line.

When a sound, practical and financially-feasible program is developed to establish another state university in Arkansas, some thought should be given to South Arkansas. This time may be long in coming, but when it does, the State of Arkansas must be on a much better financial footing than it is now to insure success of such a venture.

Dulles' Illness Won't Delay Germany Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower predicted today that Secretary of State Dulles' illness will cause no delay in Western talks with the Soviets about German problems.

Eisenhower spoke at a news conference just after Dulles had entered Walter Reed Army Hospital for a hernia operation. The secretary expects to be out of action for some weeks. Despite his age of 70 and his recent history of illness, officials predict he will be back in harness. But Western Allies expressed a degree of dismay over the illness at a crucial time.

In his news conference statement, Eisenhower praised Dulles as the most valuable man he has ever known in the foreign affairs field.

He also made clear that he resents the harsh criticism of American leaders and policy which Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev coupled last week to an invitation for Eisenhower himself to visit the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower said he understood Khrushchev is more concerned about having an informal heads of government meeting than about having a session of foreign ministers.

A summit conference, Eisenhower said, would require even more time to prepare.

In any case the President expects Dulles to be back on the job in time to contribute to the preparations. Once his hernia operation is out of the way, Eisenhower said, Dulles will have more time to think about U. S. policy on such issues as the future of Germany.

Assessment Law Extended by the House

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Counties which have not complied with Arkansas' Reassessment Act got a new lease on their state taxback funds today.

By a 74-16 vote the House passed a Senate bill extending the penalty deadline for non-compliance with the law to Dec. 31, 1959.

There was spirited opposition from a few representatives but the majority apparently believed the 1955 Reassessment Law provides for withholding of certain state taxback funds from counties which had not raised assessments to 18 per cent of valuation by last Dec. 15. No funds have been withheld yet, however, and the bill passed today means that none will be withheld.

The State Assessment Coordination Division said today that 41 of the state's 75 counties had complied with the law, and 21 others had made considerable progress toward compliance. All counties have taken some steps toward increasing assessments.

In his inaugural address, Gov. Orval E. Faubus recommended an extension of the deadline and Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello introduced the bill as an administrative measure. He bill now goes to Faubus for his signature.

Hot Springs Rep. Dewey Stiles had opposition to the bill, contending it penalized counties which had

Alexandria, Va. Integrates Schools Quietly

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Nine Negro children entered three previously all-white public schools in this historic Southern city without incident today.

They were admitted under court order, and backed by a display of police force, but there was nothing to indicate any need for the guard.

Alexandria, thus, became the third Virginia community to accept integration since the collapse of the state's "massive resistance" program and the failure of last-ditch court efforts to obtain delay.

Seventeen Negroes, in Norfolk and four in Arlington County, adjoining Alexandria, previously had been admitted to junior and senior high schools. Seven of the nine in Alexandria were the first to get into former all-white elementary schools.

Five youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 11, walked quietly into Ramsey Elementary School.

Two others entered Theodore Field Elementary in the downtown section. Another two were admitted to the Hammond High School.

Authorities had prepared for the possibility of a disturbance but nothing happened.

Between 60 and 65 police were deployed about the three schools.

Alexandria, with an estimated population of about 95,000 has a school population of about 14,000 of whom 1,800 are Negroes.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Historically rich Alexandria today becomes the third Virginia community to admit Negroes under court order to former all-white public schools.

City officials put the entire 110-man police force on special duty and took other precautions. But

Bill Calls for Study of High School Books

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A resolution calling for a study of junior and senior high school textbooks for possible subversive views was introduced today in the Arkansas House.

The resolution, by Crutcher Rep. John Stiles and Norman Wimpy, would authorize the Legislative Council to conduct the study. The resolution was referred to committee.

"Subversive elements have been boring into our education system through diverse methods," the resolution said. "Many a textbook designed for use by public schools have been written by authors who, either intentionally or unintentionally, have tainted said textbooks with views or philosophies that are subversive or contrary to the traditional American way of life."

The resolution called for a review of all textbooks in the field of American government, social science and American history.

The House received a bill by Ashley Rep. N. Murphy to require labeling by race of all human blood to be used for transfusions. The bill would provide that a patient be notified if he was to be given blood from a person of another race.

In emergencies, this provision would be inoperative.

Three labels are set forth — Caucasian, Negro and Mongoloid. Fulmer Rep. Sterling Cockrell Jr. introduced a substitute for his bill to set up machinery for returning control of schools closed by the governor to local boards.

Cockrell said the new bill differed from the old only in that it did not specifically mention Act 4 of the 1958 special session as a reason for closing these schools.

The bill provides that after schools have been closed six months, 20 per cent of the qualified electors could petition the governor for a special election on whether control of the schools should be returned to the local board.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus invoked Act 4 to close Little Rock's four public high schools against integration last Sept. 12. No other schools in the state would be affected by Cockrell's bill.

Columbia Rep. Harry Colay introduced a bill which would revoke existing law requiring counting of votes for unopposed candidates in primary and general elections.

A minimum wage bill which has the endorsement of Faubus was introduced in the House by Saline Rep. Virgil T. Fletcher. Calhoun Rep. Wilton Bethea and Hot Spring Rep. Dewey Stiles.

The bill would set a minimum wage of 70 cents per hour for most employees and 55 cents per hour for those who receive tips as part of their remuneration.

Domestic servants and agricultural workers would be exempted under the bill, which is a duplicate of a measure already introduced in the Senate.

Army Plans to Close Camp in Louisiana

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army was reported today to have reaffirmed its intention to close Ft. Polk, La., by next June 30.

The decision an informed source said, was related in a letter to Louisiana members of Congress.

In its Secretary of the Army Wilbur Brucker said the decision to inactivate Ft. Polk had been made last December after a consideration of all factors.

"Nothing new has entered the picture to alter basic considerations which led to the December decision," Brucker wrote. He added he and Secretary of Defense McElroy have reaffirmed the decision to close the post.

A large Louisiana delegation pleaded with McElroy and Brucker last week to keep the post active.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) was not available for comment today. An aide said that the senator intends to press the fight to keep Polk open.

An administration decision to cut the Army to 875,000 men was a factor in the decision to close post.

McElroy told the Louisiana group last week that the decision for an 875,000 man Army was made by President Eisenhower and "I take my orders from him."

Private School Corp. to Get $53,000 Aid

LITTLE ROCK (AP) The Little Rock Private School Corp. was expected to receive $53,000 in state aid today to operate a school set up to replace those closed in the integration dispute.

State Auditor Jimmie Jones turned a warrant for the money over to the state Education Department yesterday after Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett told him he would not violate a federal court order by his action.

The warrant called for $53,139.50 to be paid to the all-white Roney High School for 799 students. The students transferred there after Gov. Orval E. Faubus shut Little Rock's four public high schools to block integration.

Jones asked Bennett about the federal court order before he signed the warrant. His question referred to a restraining order issued by the U. S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court ordered a number of state and school officials not to have anything to do with altering the status of integration in the Little Rock schools.

The warrant for the state money was mailed to the Little Rock Private School Corp. yesterday by the Education Department.

Ike School Aid Not Enough, Many Complain

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower ran into bipartisan complaints in Congress today that his five-year school aid program doesn't go far enough fast enough.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) said that top Republican on the Senate Education and Labor Committee, he will introduce the administration's bills. But he said he does not believe Eisenhower's proposals "will meet the needs for elementary school construction."

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming made public details of the administration program Monday. It proposes a five-year plan of helping finance school and college construction at a cost to the government of about 2 1/2 billion dollars. But the spending, on a bond retirement basis, would be spread over about 25 years.

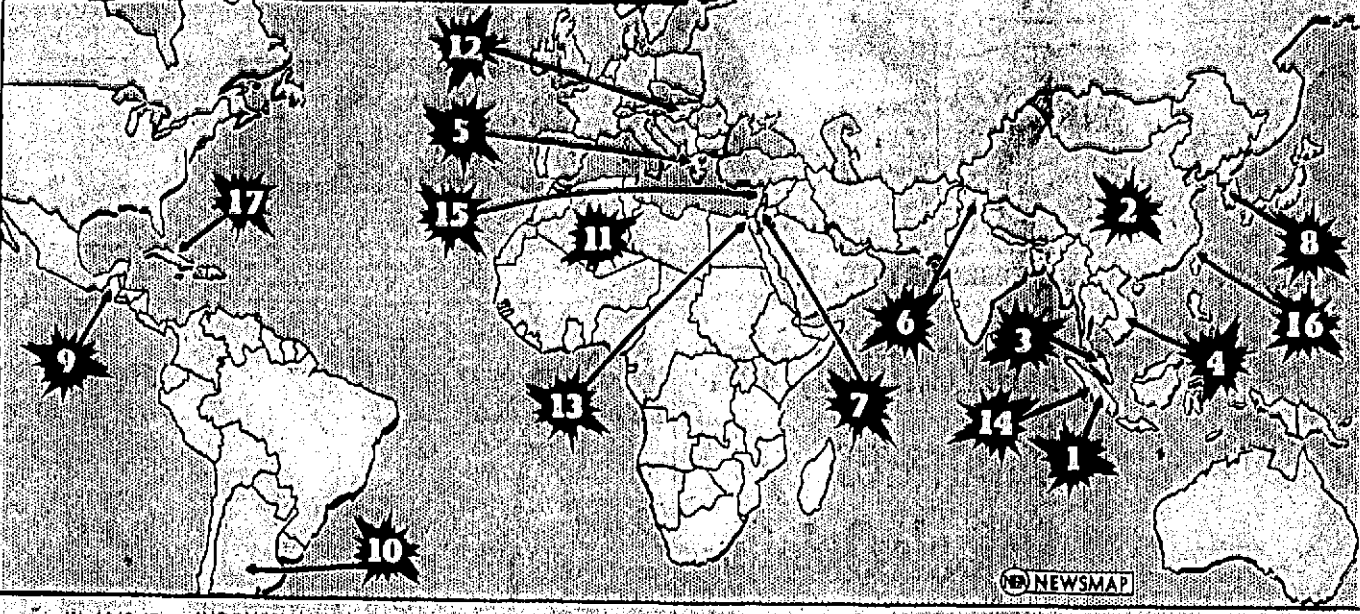

Cooper was expected to discuss his views with Eisenhower in a call at the White House.

Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.), who has proposed a two-year program of a billion dollars, annually for school aid, said in a separate interview he regards the administration's program as "totally inadequate."

Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.), chairman of a subcommittee considering school aid bills, called the administration's program a "legislative monstrosity," he said was "designed not to help education but to help bankers."

Flemming, disputing that, con-

YEARS OF CONFLICT—The so-called era of peace which the world welcomed after World War II has been anything but peaceful, as Newsmap above shows. The same year the war ended, fighting broke out between the Netherlands and Indonesia. All over the world, nationalistic feelings, held in check during the global struggle, rose to a tide that has swept in a wide series of "limited wars" since then. They have included overthrowing—or attempts to overthrow—foreign domination, civil insurrections and subversion, boundary disputes and the ousting of home-grown dictators; the most recent being the Cuban Revolution. Background to it all has been the continuing "Cold War" between Eastern communism and Western democracy. It has been the most war-filled "peacetime" era in history.

Janded that all the pending school aid proposals would require deficit financing, which would mean government borrowing "at interest rates comparing to interest rates on school bonds."

"The damning thing about the administration proposal is that it sidesteps the problem which should be met head-on," Murray said in a statement. "It will take $5,000,000,000 to construct all the more than 14,000 classrooms needed right now."

Flemming said the five-year program he proposed would make possible three billions of public school construction and two billions of college projects in addition to what was built without government help.

As submitted to Congress Monday the Eisenhower program would call for federal aid to needy school districts—up to a maximum of $5 million dollars a year—to pay half the cost of bonds and interest to finance needed public schools. This would cost about two billion dollars over 25 years.

A college and university aid program would provide up to 25 million dollars a year for retirement assistance on construction of housing and academic facilities. Total cost was estimated at half a billion dollars in 25 years.

About 10:30 one evening, the phone rang.

"This is Bill..." a friend said. "I've just had a bad wreck. Banged up both cars pretty bad. And sent a couple of people to the hospital. The accident was clearly my fault. I was just not paying attention and ran through a stop sign. What do I do now? How do I go about settling the accident?"

Naturally, I told him the steps to take.

Then, he asked again (for about the fourth time), "Are you sure I'm covered with the right kind of insurance?"

I reassured him that he was well protected.

To me, that is one of the big advantages of local agency service—AVAILABILITY. I'm sure you would feel that way too if you were involved in such an accident, or a bad fire, or other big loss.

So, let us handle your insurance requirements. We'll try, first of all, to see that they are written properly.

Then, we'll be available (like your family doctor) if you need us any time of day or night. And, when you place an urgent call, we'll provide real service. Both by helping to settle the claim, and by providing reassurance that your insurance program will shoulder the loss.

Why not give our PERSONALIZED SERVICE a try?

Texarkana Here for Pair of Games Tonight

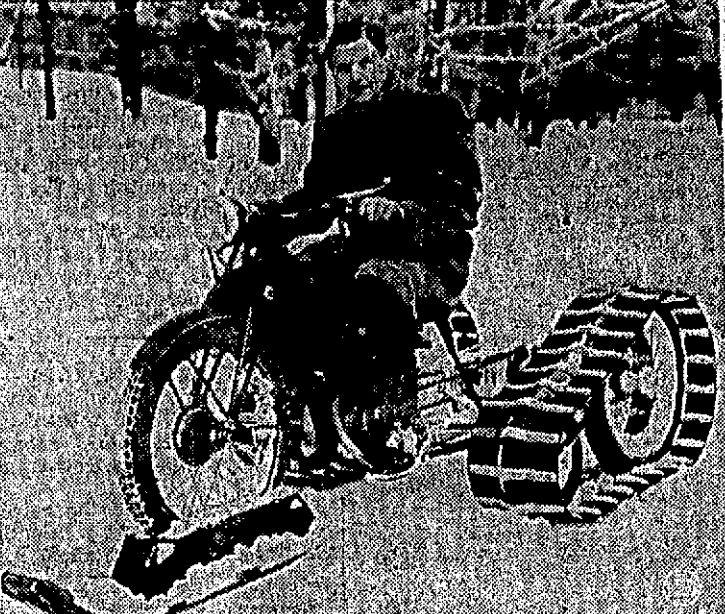

Coach Don Sevier's Bobcats will take on the Texarkana Razorbacks in a non-conference game tonight at Jones Field House.

At 7 p. m. Coach Gordon Measler's girls will start activities, taking on the strong Texarkana girls team.

Coach Sevier feels that his boys will have to go all out to take this one. The Razorbacks lack a tall man as they had in Vest and Morrison last year, but they have plenty of speed. Although they are still considered a very fine team.

Bob Whitener, the best of the visitors, is averaging 15 points a game with his driving ability.

The Bobcats now have a 16-2 record and are second in their district.

Porkers Drop Game to Rice by 68 to 62

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three spear-carriers and the league mascot clash tonight in Southwest Conference basketball action.

Baylor and Southern Methodist, a couple of teams chasing along in the pack, behind pace-setting Texas Christian college at Waco, Texas, the losingest team in the league, plays a nother team still theoretically in the race — Texas Tech — at Lubbock.

Rice clouted Arkansas 68 — 62 last night at Houston.

TCU leads the conference chase with seven victories and one loss. Baylor and Texas Tech are tied for second at 5-3. SMU is 4-3.

The rest of the league tags along with Texas A&M 4-4, Arkansas 3-5, Rice 2-6 and Texas 1-6.

Senior Dale Ball scored 29 points in a game, clipped Arkansas, Ball's 29 points was the highest scoring effort of his career.

But the teams tied with 26 field goals each and it was the Owls' accuracy from the foul line and a 16-10 margin in free throws that won.

Rice's shooting ace, giant Tom Robitaille, was held to 9 points.

Kentucky Stays at Top of Poll in Cage Rating

Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky, North Carolina and Kansas State still are rated the top three teams in college basketball in the new Associated Press poll, somewhat dubiously after the 66-68 loss to Mississippi State Monday night.

The sports writers and broadcasters participating in the weekly accounting based their selections on games through last Saturday. As a result, only Michigan State dropped from the top 10.

The Big Ten Spartans skidded down to 12th place after an 86-81 loss to Purdue of Saturday. Bradley, St. Louis and West Virginia moved up one place in the rankings, making room for Mississippi State in tenth place.

Kentucky drew 42 of 101 first place votes and accumulated 655 points. North Carolina had 18 first and 702 points and Kansas State 10 and 666. Uthmaniyah, Auburn remained ahead of Cincinnati in a close race for fourth.

The top ten teams with first place votes in parentheses (points in 10-9-8 etc. basis)

1. Kentucky (42) 855
2. North Carolina (18) 702
3. Kansas State (1) 650
4. Auburn (6) 585
5. Cincinnati (3) 572

7. Bradley (3) 275
8. St. Louis (3) 259
9. West Virginia (3) 221

L. R. Board to Rehire J. O. Powell

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Another member of the Little Rock School Board today announced his opposition to rehiring J. O. Powell as assistant principal of Central High School.

Ben D. Rowland, Sr., secretary of the school board, also said in a statement that he opposed rehiring Jess Mathews, principal of the closed school, and Mrs. Elizabeth Huckaby, another assistant principal.

Ed J. McKinley Jr., president of the school board, and R.W. Laster, a board member, had said earlier they were against rehiring Powell.

No comment could be obtained from the NCAA today despite a third-place finish.

Marquette was the victim of a second, half uprising by DePaul, trailing 47-44 at the intermission. DePaul broke open the game after Jim Fleming put it ahead 69-67. The 69-60 setback was the second in 19 games for Marquette.

De Paul is 9-5.

Indiana blew a golden opportunity to deadlock the Michigan State for the Big 10 lead. The Hoosiers raced to a 17-0 lead over Illinois, but the fighting Illinois roared back with a 55 point second half to win 69-63. Indiana now trails Michigan State by one game, Illinois' league mark is 4-5.

Pettit, Hagan Best Scoring Combination

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagan of the St. Louis Hawks are forming a one-two punch unmatched in the history of the National Basketball Assn.

Through games of Sunday, Feb. 8, Pettit had scored 1,559 points and Hagan 1,277 for a total of 2,836. Between them, they accounted for an average 52.5 points per game and need only a combined average of 30.9 the rest of the way to top the all-time combo mark of 3,392 set by Paul Arizin and Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors in 1957.

Pettit's No. 1 again in scoring Hagan is up to No. 3, according to statistics released today by the NBA. Pettit has a 28.9 average in 54 games, followed by Arizin with 24.5 and 140.1 points for 55 games, and Hagan 23.6 for 54.

Bill Sharman of Boston continues to lead in free throw percentage, with but 17 misses in 273 attempts for a .896 mark. Ken Sears of New York still leads in field goal percentage with .498. Boston's Bob Cousy tops the field in assists with 422 in 52 games for an 8.1 average, and Boston's Bill Russell remains well ahead in rebounding, with a 22.9 average to 16.7 for Pettit, the runner-up.

Many Figure Joe Brown to Lose Title

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—There's a feeling, lightweight champion Joe Brown may reach the end of the road here Wednesday night in his sixth title defense.

Brown, the aging Negro from Baton Rouge, La., meets a fellow who already has given him a licking—Johnny Busso of New York.

He will enter the ring a 7-5 favorite locally but with longer odds elsewhere—in New York it's 2½ to 1—but even Brown and his manager Lou Viscusi aren't making any student claims of victory.

It's quite different from Brown's last two title fights, both in Houston, when the champion told all that he would knock out both Ralph Dupas and Kenny Lane. He did klayo Dupas, but he never came close to putting Lane on the canvas. In fact, he won a very close decision.

"This Busso has the biggest dimensions of any lightweight I ever saw," observed Viscusi. "If you consider everything but his weight you'd think the fellow was a welter-of-middleweight."

Busso proved too strong when he decided Brown in a non-title fight at Miami Nov. 4. He wasn't even shaken.

Brown has claimed that he had the fight gone 15 rounds he would win. That's something Busso still disputes.

Busso says Brown's age—he's 33 to Busso's 24 — is against such a claim.

The fight will be televised at 10 p.m. EST.

Kentucky Meet Hidden Behind Uncertainty

By BEN OLAN

Kentucky's tournament picture was hidden behind a cloud of uncertainty today following a stunning reversal by Mississippi State on a night of basketball upsets that also saw Marquette's 12-game winning streak go by the boards and unexpected developments in the Big 10.

Kentucky, the defending NCAA champ and top-ranked in the Associated Press poll succumbed to Mississippi State 66-58. The setback, the Wildcats' second in 20 games, dropped them into third place in the Southeastern Conference.

Monday night's result gave Mississippi State an 8-1 SEC record to 6-2 for Kentucky. Auburn, which beat Florida 63-71, heads the conference with 10-0.

However, because Auburn is on NCAA probation and a state law in Mississippi prohibits competition against teams having Negro players, Kentucky may find itself in the unique position next month of representing the conference in

3rd Man in Bank Robbery Is in Jail

LEACHVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A Leachville man accused of taking part in the $22,088 robbery of the Bank of Weiner a week ago gave up at a farm house near here early today.

Joe Mullins, 25, surrendered to officers he had summoned to the house.

"He was the third suspect in the Feb. 2 robbery. The other two were apprehended three days after the bank was held up."

Officers said Mullins had been hiding within a 50-mile radius of Leachville.

"Late last night Mullins went to the home of Lee A. Chadwick, one of the other men jailed in connection with the robbery, and met Mrs. Mullins there."

FBI agents said the fugitive sent his wife to bring officers to the house.

She summoned Night Marshal R. R. Potter of Leechville and Mississippi County Deputy Sheriff Leo Adams. They made the arrest.

About $1,980 of the bank loot was recovered, the FBI said.

Officers recovered $14,421 of the money when they captured Chadwick and James Hand, 19, in the Otwell-Leachville area last week.

Chadwick, 36, and Mullins are related by marriage.

Mullins was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Carson Bothe at Jonesboro and waived preliminary hearing. He was jailed in lieu of $25,000 bond.

A fourth person was arrested last week in connection with the holdup. This was Johnny Mullins, 19, of Leachville, a brother of the man arrested today.

Young Mullins was charged with transporting the other three men from Leachville to a point near Fisher, but was not accused of having a role in the actual holdup.

Federal bank robbery charges have been lodged against Chadwick, Hand and Mullins.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus also has said he opposed hiring the trio again. Faubus charged yesterday that they discriminated against white students during the times Central High was integrated.

Central and the city's other three public high schools were closed by Faubus Sept. 12 in a move to resist integration ordered by federal courts.

Rowland's statement said in part that he had intended to reserve comment on the reemployment of teachers until April or May "when it is customary to re-elect teachers, generally upon the recommendations of the school superintendent."

But, the statement said, the subject of rehiring was being discussed daily. Rowland said he would vote against rehiring Mathews, Powell, Mrs. Huckaby and probably a few others.

Their record during the preceding school year is not one which I can afford to endorse because I intend to fight for and uphold segregation in schools until the end of my term on the school board," Rowland's statement said.

Jobs Getting Scarce Again Report Shows

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business & News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Unemployment is on the rise again. Weather is usually blamed for this in January and February. This time the business situation itself is playing a role.

There's a new element: The failure of employment to hit as fast a recovery pace as those of industry output and sales.

To some extent this is traditional. First increase in production usually met by restoring full work weeks for those who had been on shorter work schedules. Usually, as in this case, employers have used the period of recession to cut out overhead fat and operational frills, and to build up efficiency.

But the lag this time is more pronounced than in the two previous postwar recoveries.

That's because this time there's another factor: increased productivity.

This means that the big business spending boom of the recent years for better plants and more efficient and all but automated equipment is now paying off. Industry currently is able to turn out more goods per man hour of labor than it did before its spending and building boom. So it can increase output without adding much to payrolls.

Still another factor is that the total labor force is beginning to grow faster now than a few years back.

What to do about the new situation brings many suggestions:

Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, thinks the government should help. Specifically he proposes increased consumer buying power (in large part from higher wages, including the minimum wage congress sets) and federal aid to areas where unemployment is a problem.

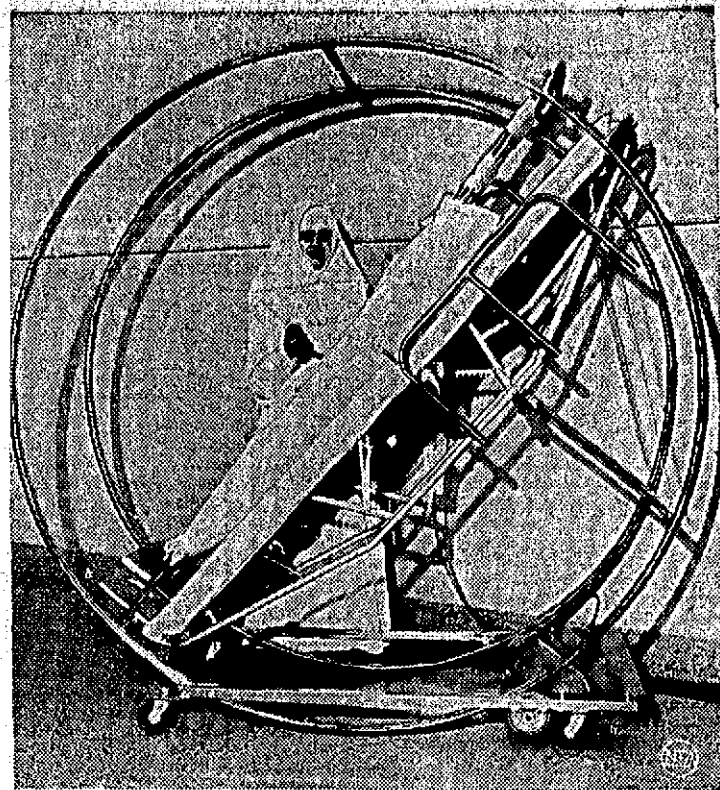

Dr. Ralph Robey, economic adviser to the National Assn. of Manufacturers, contends that business will get right back into the recession-soup again if the increase in productivity leads to exceptional wage increases.

The stand of the Federal Reserve board takes an in-between ductivity, thus, cutting out some stance. It notes that modernization spending has increased profits. It also notes that increasing labor costs, including all the fringe benefits, makes management cautious about hiring new workers until new orders make it imperative.

But the unemployment problem isn't nationwide. Joblessness has concentrated largely in the durable goods industries. That is where retrenching has been more sluggish this time than in the earlier slumps.

In most other segments of the economy the employment picture is much brighter.

CHAPTER XXVI

Twin muzzles gaped venomously in the general direction of the rider's chest, which individual batted his eyes nervously, then turned in at the doorway.

"Come on, Trip," he said to his companion. "Some things it just don't pay to argue with."

In the Golden Horn the light of midday was subdued; to Gil Yeager it seemed as if an ominous gloom filled the place. Men stood or sat about. Toward its inner end, Meade Bastian was at the bar, along with Duke Royale and Ollie Ladd. Burke Benedict, having walked half way down the room, was paused now, and his voice rang, growling.

"All right, Bastian—here I am. You got anything to say, let's have it. Then it'll be my turn."

Meade Bastian was looking past Burke, his pale, flaring glance on Gil Yeager and Cam Reeves. When he did speak, it was to Duke Royale, his words low and for Royale's ears alone.

Gil Yeager, recalling what Cam Reeves had said to him out at the Long B that morning, made the most of this chance for a careful appraisal of Meade Bastian and Duke Royale as they stood side by side. And he glimpsed something of what Cam had hinted, an approximate height and build, with some similarity of feature, though the opposed coloration of the eyes was a marked physical difference most people would fail to see beyond.

Stepping past Meade Bastian and Ollie Ladd, Duke Royale came along the room, his glance on Cam Reeves. He indicated the shotgun.

"What's that for—a holdup?"

"If it was, by now you'd be reaching high," Cam told him punently. "Either that or spread out cold, plumb full of buckshot."

Meade Bastian finally directed some words at Burke Benedict.

"Would you be traveling with a bodyguard, Benedict?"

Yeager answered for Burke.

"The main point is—we're here. And just in case you thought of putting Burke out on some kind of limb, you can figure Cam and me as being right out there with him."

Burke had turned, was looking back at Cam and Yeager. The shadow of a grim smile touched his lips.

"That makes good listening, Gil. Obligated," Burke turned to Bastian again. "If you got something to say to me, get it off your chest."

"If I were you," Bastian said thinly, "I'd remind myself of a warning you got the other day about turning too friendly with certain people. Things can change out at the Long B, you know." "Things have changed a good deal more than you imagine," Burke said steadily. "So your warnings don't mean a thing any more. And if that's your say, now here's mine. Stay away from me and mine. Don't cross Long B ground again. That goes for you and your whole thieving crew!"

On the wheels of Burke's flatly defiant ultimatum a distance moment of dead silence held. Then a long sigh drifted through the room. Duke Royale turned his bitter-black glance on Burke, and Ollie Ladd, swinging away from the bar, came several ponderous strides toward him.

Ollie had been drinking. He had been riding the bottle pretty heavily ever since Clint Hyatt had stripped the deputy's badge and its authority from him. Now his lips pulled loosely and he cursed Burke, laying on him the unforgivable epithet.

For a man whose normal movement was paced and solid and deliberate, Burke acted with explosive swiftness. He slithered forward and rolled his heavy, rawboned shoulders behind a driving fist. The impact of the blast was a meaty thud, and it sealed off Ollie Ladd's mouthings as though he's been struck dead.

It sent the hulking ex-deputy reeling back a pace, where he wavered, half stunned. Burke moved in and hit him again, hit him twice, tipping Ollie's head back with a driving left, then clubbing a winging right to the open jaw. Ollie fell against the bar, teetered a moment, then went heavily down.

With this, Burke turned and paced to the door. Duke Royale, stepping aside to let him pass. A stirring movement by some of the combine men set the muzzle

Cotton to Have 8-Cent Subsidy

The Department of Agriculture announces that the payment-in-kind export program will be the only program in effect after Aug. 1 of this year.

It also announced that the subsidy for exports will be eight cents a pound.

Price is Lower

Figuring from the CCC resale price for middling lynch at average location this means an export price of about 23.25 cents. This is a reduction of 524 points from the 28.49-cent average price paid for export cotton in Monday's sale.

The department announced that the competitive sales program, which has been in effect for three years, will be discontinued as of Aug. 1, except for PIK, barter, credit sales and other special programs.

The department also announced that it plans to make cotton fully competitive, that the subsidy is subject to change without notice, that adjustments will be made from time to time and that a full review of the situation will be made once a month.

Greater Than Indicated

The increase of the subsidy from 650 to 800 points is a greater price reduction to foreign buyers than the figures indicate.

The 650 points were from a base of 81 per cent of parity loan or a minimum competitive sales price of 28.30 cents.

The new greater subsidy will be figured from the CCC resale price, which is 110 per cent of the choice B loan, which is 65 per cent of parity.

Executions in Cuba Total 289

HAVANA (AP)—Executions in Cuba rose today to 289, by unofficial count, with the death of a former army captain before a firing squad in Santa Clara, Las Villas province.

Fidel Castro, the rebel chief, and Provisional President Manuel Urrutia arranged to lead a funeral cortege to Havana cemetery for formal reburial services for 19 of those who came to Cuba with Castro in 1956 to start the revolution. The bodies were brought here from Oriente province for the services.

Court Asked to Overturn Judgment

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court was asked yesterday to overturn a Pope Circuit Court judgment which awarded $2,100 to a woman for the death of her husband.

The Life and Casualty Insurance Co. appealed the lower court's verdict, which ordered it to pay the money to Mrs. Mayme Jones. The award was for the death of her husband, Riley Jones, who died April 6, 1957, after he was struck over the head with a soft drink bottle during an argument with another man.

In appealing the verdict, the of Cam Reeves' shotgun to swinging in a steady arc which covered the room with its throat. The double snick of the hammers as Cam brought them to full cock, made small but ominous echoes.

With Burke already safely in the street and a vigilant Gil Yeager at his shoulder, Cam backed through the door and let it swing shut again.

Duke Royale turned on Bastian savagely.

"Well, that's another deal we lost. This sort of thing keeps on, we'll lose the game. First there was just Yeager, and we agreed on a finish for him. But we were slow getting around to it. So he got the jump on us, with Trezevant and Mima helping. Now he's got Benedict and Reeves on his side. There could be somebody else, tomorrow. We got to do something, and do it quick!"

Bastian flared back at him.

"You think I like it this way? Tomorrow I'll—"

"Tonight! Tonight and no later! Black and bitter eyes and flaring gray ones met and held. Meade Bastian nodded.

"All right. Tonight it is."

In the barroom, after several tries, Ollie Ladd stumbled erect and leaned against the bar. He spat crimson from mashed lips and called for whiskey.

Dulles Enters Hospital for an Operation

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles checks into the hospital today to get ready for a hernia operation.

His ailment, kept secret for more than a month, was disclosed by President Eisenhower Monday night as Dulles asked and got a formal leave of absence. It immediately posed two big questions.

Will Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, return to his post?

Will the West, with an ailing Dulles or without him at all, revise its just-a-barring policy toward new Soviet threats and demands on Germany?

Both Dulles and presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty sought to give assurances on those questions. Dulles said he would be gone for "a few weeks" only. Hagerty said Dulles would not only return but would represent the United States in any talks with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis.

Dulles' ability to shrug off illness and put in a grinding day is almost legend. But on Capitol Hill there was less optimism about Dulles' power to snap back completely from his third illness, as many months.

And the State Department, driving to develop a solid-front Allied response to the Soviets, pondered the effect of the absence of a chief who likes to do most of the heavy work himself.

Under Secretary C. Douglas Dillon took over as acting secretary. Under Secretary Christian Herter, who outranks Dillon, will relieve him Sunday, upon return from a South Carolina vacation.

Dulles' disclosure came about nine hours after he returned from critical talks with top leaders in London. Paris and Bonn. He had made the trip wearing a truss to ease a left inguinal (groin) hernia. He had also taken along medication for a persistent inflammation of the colon.

It was these two—the hernia and the inflammation—which led him to Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the same hospital at which he underwent surgery two years ago to remove a cancerous portion of his lower intestine.

Hagerty said there was no evidence of any recurrence of the cancer.

Dulles met with Eisenhower Monday night in the President's living quarters on the second floor of the White House. Then Hagerty made public Dulles' letter to the President.
